Imagine that you and your mother wrote heartfelt letters to each other throughout your lives, sharing your deepest thoughts, worries, desires and dreams. Now imagine that your mother did the same thing with her mother. And that her mother did the same with her mother. And on, and on.

Destinies chronicles the extraordinary lives of eight generations of a family, from the nineteenth century through the twenty-first century. Through their letters to each other and the writings in their personal diaries, they learn who came before them ”“and how their lives were intertwined across generations. Shades of Ekaterina can be seen in Marina, even though five generations separated them. Tiana’s strong will mirrors that of her great great great great grandmother, Anya, though they lived two centuries apart.

The women, men and children in this family faced new and unique challenges in their day-to-day lives. They dealt with the harsh realities of war, abuse, death and uncertain futures. But what they had in common was each other. Through their writings to one another, they realized that understanding their past was vital to shaping their own lives and that those who came before them were alive in them. These discoveries enabled them to understand the present and plan for the future – not just their future, but those of future generations as well.”

Heartfelt and wonderful!

By Sausalito_Mermaid

This is a very heartfelt book, a family's journey through generations, told through letters written from mother to daughter. Beautiful and moving!
